At last our hot weather has moved on and our students are once again enjoying their breaks outside.

NAPLAN

This week we had the Coordinated Practice Test (CPT) where all students in Australia in Years 3, 5, 7 and 9 sat an omnibus test (a little bit of each test). This was to confirm that we are ready from a technical and administrative perspective ahead of the NAPLAN test period in March. It also enabled our students to see what it looked like and address any concerns or questions.

Site Improvement Plan (SIP)

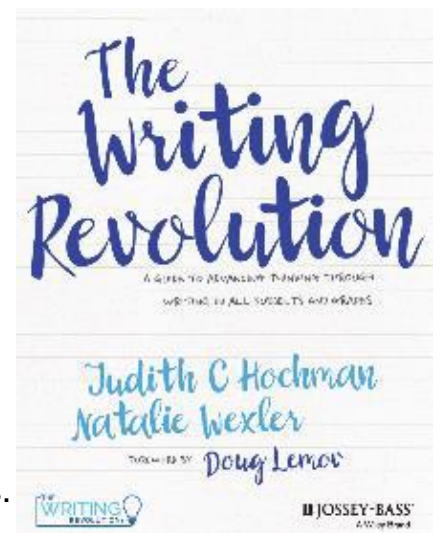

This year our literacy goal in our Site Improvement Plan is to improve our students writing. Two of our actions are, that teachers will explicitly teach language structures to provide quality teaching for every student and that teachers will use The Writing Revolution text to improve student learning outcomes.

We have Kelly Heading, Curriculum Lead in our portfolio visiting twice a term during staff meetings to work through this book together to further improve our students writing.

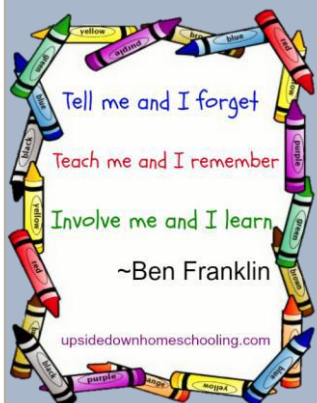

The Writing Revolution offers a clear, coherent method of instruction for any subject or grade level that turns struggling writers into strong communicators, deepens their understanding of content, and develops their analytical abilities.

The Writing Revolution's method enables educators to teach writing skills and content simultaneously. There's no separate writing class and no separate writing curriculum. Instead, teachers of all subjects adapt the strategies and activities to pre-existing curriculum and weave them into their content instruction. This means that no matter if it is an English lesson or Science lesson, this method can be used.

We look forward to sharing some examples of our students writing this year.
